THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CON-VENTION.

A National Convention of the Republican party will meet at Chicago, Wednesday, the 30 day of June next, for the nomination of candidates to be supported for President and Vice President at the next election.

Republicans, and all who will co-operate with them in supporting the nominee of the party, are invited to choose two delegates from each Congressional District, four at large from each State, two from each Territory, and two from the District of Columbia, to represent them in the Convention.

J. D. CAMERON, Chairman.
THOMAS B. KEOGH, Secretary.

The Maine muddle is still the Maine question.

Senator Blaine is the strongest Republican candidate in Indiana.

If Garcelon only had a nephew, the firm of Tilden and Garcelon will be fairly equipped for business next fall and winter.

I am glad Garcelon had the courage to steal the Legislature. In Wisconsin the outrage would not be permitted, but in Maine it is all right.—General Bragg.

No man was ever elected to the Senate who received more hearty congratulations from his political enemies than James A.
Garfield. His friends embrace all political parties.

The money question is becoming a serious one with the Fusionists in the Maine Legislature. The State Treasurer still refuses to pay them, and this does as much to perplex them as having no quorum.

The confirmation of Mr. Kutchin, of the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, for Internal Revenue Collector, still hangs fire in the Senate. It is thought that this week will settle the matter favorably to Mr. Kutchin.

The first annual message of Governor Cornell, of New York, is prominently noticed for the reason that lengthy as it is, the personal pronoun "I" is not used once. This may be the best feature of the message.

Ex-Governor Garcelon still holds to his original position that he is proud he stole the Legislature. The main difference between Tilden and Garcelon is that the latter is bolder than Tilden. Tilden tried to steal, and laid it on his nephew; Garcelon did steal, and is proud to own it.

Barkside, who assassinated Captain Dixon, at Yazoo, last summer, is a prominent candidate for United States Senator, and on Saturday he received more votes by twenty than any other candidate. It strengthens a man greatly in the South to hear the reputation of having killed some one who attempted to run for office against the regular Democratic nominee.

Governor Smith's message will probably be delivered before a joint convention of the Senate and Assembly on Thursday afternoon. Let us see how many morning papers in Chicago and Milwaukee will succeed in publishing it before its delivery. Certain papers seem to think that stealing a document of that kind is a commendable piece of enterprise. That is a par with the "enterprise" of the Maine Democrats.

A dispatch from Milwaukee says the question of the existence of silver in paying quantities in the Northern part of this State is at last to be determined conclusively. "Mr. C. Ellis, of Chino, who is largely interested in the so-called silver mines, has been in Milwaukee for several days past for the purpose of forming a company to commence operations next spring. The report to day is that he has succeeded in completing his plan, and will return home happy."

The Chicago disciples of Tom Paine have made arrangements to celebrate his birthday in that city on the evening of the 29th of January, when it will be one hundred and forty-three years since he was born. An attempt will be made to form a Paine Monument Association in Chicago, the object of which shall be to erect a suitable monument to the memory of that remarkable man. Colonel Ingersoll will be invited to deliver the address on the evening of the celebration.

The Madison Correspondent of the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph, tells how Judge Barron goes for one point to another in his circuit to hold court. Here is the story:
"Judge H. D. Barron was here on Friday, not as connected with the legislature, but on his way to Ashland, to hold court. It is about 60 miles across from his home at St. Croix Falls, to Ashland, but he goes from there to Stillwater, and thence about 750 miles by rail, via Madison and Milwaukee, to reach the county seat on the shore of Lake Superior. He might cut off 140 miles by going direct from Portage, but the proportionately small saving would be hardly worth while."

Mr. Frank Leslie, the well known illustrated newspaper publisher, died at his home in New York on Saturday evening at six o'clock. He led an eventful life, rising from poverty to wealth, and falling from affluence into business troubles. On the whole, however, his career may be said to have been a very successful one. He came to this country from England when he was twenty-seven years old, and attached himself to an illustrated paper in Boston. While in England he engraved and sketched for the London Illustrated News.
Leslie's Illustrated News was started in New York more than twenty years ago, and for some time he was successful, but he had too many irons in the fire, and failed in business in 1877 while attempting to publish thirteen illustrated journals.

Within the past two or three years he had considerable trouble with two sons who became quite expensive to him, and they added to his financial miseries. It is said that his property is worth $500,000, and that his liabilities are $410,000. It was Mr. Leslie who first brought out Thomas Nast, who since he left the service of Leslie, has become the most popular and brilliant caricaturist of modern times. About 1856, when Nast was quite a boy, he went to Leslie, and wanted work as a sketcher. Leslie was struck with the seeming intelligence of the lad, and while he had no work for him to do, he told the ambitious young artist to go to Fulton Ferry and make a sketch of the landing of one of the ferry boats and bring it to him. He thought this was the easiest way to get rid of Tommy Nast, as he was then called. But he did as he was told, went to the ferry, took a position, made his sketch, presented it to Leslie, who was amazed at the excellence of the drawing. He gave him employment, and from that day Nast started on the road to fame.

GIVE US A SHORT SESSION.

The thirty-third annual session of the Wisconsin Legislature will convene at Madison at twelve o'clock on Monday next. There is nothing of special importance for the Legislature to do this winter, except perhaps, to consider the question of restoring the death penalty for the crime of premeditated and unprovoked murder, to regulate the rate of interest, and to discuss the biennial session plan. These questions will very likely receive much more attention than any other measures that will come before the Legislature and no conjecture can be safely made as to the result. While there seems to exist a necessity for a more effective mode of punishing murderers, there is still much prejudice in the State against the scaffold, and the appalling murders committed here during the last year and a half, do not seem to make the revival of the death penalty a certainty. A very large majority of people in Southern Wisconsin are strongly in favor of the gallows, especially for such subjects as Baumgarten and Christensen, but whether a majority in the Legislature can be made to think as they do, is yet undetermined.

It is fair to presume that the bill to reduce the legal rate of interest, and the resolution to submit to the people the question of changing the Constitution so as to provide for biennial sessions, will be brought up, and that they will be largely discussed. Aside from these questions, there is nothing of special importance to claim the attention of the Legislature. For this reason, it is to be hoped that there will be a reasonably short session. The shorter the better. All there is to do can be done in less than five or six weeks, and done well. As the Republicans are largely in the majority, and must be responsible for the quality and quantity of the Legislative business transacted this winter, they should see that their work is well done and the session not unnecessarily long. Half of the bills introduced at every session are totally directed of all merit. It costs time and money to consider these proposed measures, worthless as they are, and the Republicans should consider these facts, and wisely do their duty, and faithfully represent their constituents, by rapidly disposing of all such business, and making the session of 1880 a model one both regarding its shortness and the character of the work done.
There will be no excuse for a session extending over fifty or sixty days, unless more important questions than are now thought of are brought before the Legislature.

A FAIRGOLD CALL.

The Greenbackers have made a call for a National Convention to be held at Chicago, on the 9th of June. At that time they propose to nominate a candidate for President. The call, which is signed by Thompson H. March, Greenback Congressman in Maine, is just such a document as any one would take for the product of demagogues, political schemers, irresponsible adventurers, and financial insects. It is one of those documents which, as the phrase goes, gives the fellows away. It is reckless in its assertions, bombastic in its pretensions, and was gotten up for the express purpose of misleading the people. It pretends to say that we have reached a terrible crisis in our history; that the Government has passed under the control of land-grabbers, stock-jobbers, bankers and politicians; that labor has no rights; that monopolies have usurped the rights of the people; that wealth is crushing the poor; that popular government is assailed by those who are rich; that pauperism, crime, and misery fill the land; and that there is no way of escape from everlasting destruction except by electing some crazy Greenbacker President of the United States. For this reason, a call has been issued and an appeal made to the people.

There probably never was a time in the history of this country, when business—in the aggregate—was better than it is now.
There never was a time since steam was used to drive mills and factories, when there was more manufacturing done than now. There never was a time in the history of our industries when there were more goods being manufactured and shipped abroad than to-day; and reliable statistics show that there are more men, women, and children employed in mills and factories than were ever known in the history of this country, and at wages that have a greater purchasing power than ever before. These are facts known to every intelligent reader, and they will impress every candid mind with the total lack of slincerity on the part of those who are the authors of the call for a National Greenback Convention.

There is no country on the face of the earth enjoying more substantial prosperity, than the United States. In proportion to the population, there is no country where there is so little pauperism and crime, as in this, none in which the working people are better provided with homes.
Every one who has visited Europe or other countries, and who has paid any attention to the condition of the working people there, is amazed at the vastly superior condition of the mechanics and laborers of the United States; and when he returns home, he feels prouder than ever of his own country. When men talk like the men who issued the call for the Greenback Convention, they talk like the lowest political demagogues and those who attempt to rule into power by falsehoods, cunning, and trickery.

FROM MADISON.

The Legislative Session Arriving at the Capitol—The Office Seekers.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, Jan. 12.—The Legislative session has commenced to-day. Quite a delegation came in on the morning trains. Both Mr. Arnold, and Mr. Pierce, candidates for speaker, are here. El Coo, candidate for Chief Clerk, ex-Senator Torrey, candidate for first assistant Chief Clerk, of Assembly, Senators Price, Van Sice-wick, Griffin, Thomas, and several others, are already here. John Eldred, candidate for Chief of Assembly and the Milwaukee Delegation, are expected to arrive this evening. There is no opposition to Chas.
E. Bross for Chief Clerk, and Chas. Ingersoll, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate.
The Governor is hard at work on his message which is not yet completed; the message will be delivered Thursday noon if there is no hitch in organization which there is not likely to be.

THE STATE OF MAINE.

A Diabolical Plot Discovered and Frustrated.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 11.—The removal of the arms from the State House was brought about by the unwillingness of Mayor Nash to place his police force therein unless the irresponsible rabble under command of the so-called Captain Black, with the arms were taken away, fearing that in the face of trouble the police would be at the mercy of the armed rabble placed there by the Superintendent of Public Buildings. When the removal was made almost diabolical plot was unearthed. Sixty or seventy rifles were found secreted in an out of the way place over the State Library, together with a lot of men, the remainder of the force which is said to have numbered 200, all of whom were bound by an oath to obey Captain Black's orders, being scattered about the building in such a manner as to be at hand when wanted.
The rifles were loaded with ball cartridges and with bayonets fixed. The fact has been stated that the Fusionists feared an attempt would be made by the Republicans to seize the house after adjournment on Friday; also the noticeable fact that persons were refused admittance to the galleries on that day. It has now become evident that the plan was, that in case such an attempt at organization should be made that this armed mob, composed of ex-State prison convicts and others of like character, should have come down from their hiding places through a secret passage to the gallery of the house from which those present would have been driven at the point of the bayonet, and, if resisted, by powder and ball.

The cases of ammunition had been opened and cartridge boxes filled with the deadly missiles. The dense throng which filled the galleries on Wednesday would have prevented the desperadoes from gaining an entrance through the narrow passage through which they would have been obliged to pass, and hence the galleries were kept closed every day thereafter.
When General John Marshall Brown carried out the orders of General Chamberlain for the removal of the arms, he was obliged to draw the cartridges, and a number of rifles carried into the State House cannot be found.

PORTLAND, Jan. 11.—President Lamson, of the Senate, has assumed the duties of Governor, and the Argus will publish the following to-morrow:

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 11, 1880.

To the Honorable the Senate:—"I have the honor to announce to you, by careful examination of the constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, in view of the fact that the office of Governor has become vacant, it becomes my imperative duty, as President of the Senate, to exercise the office of Governor until another Governor is qualified. It therefore becomes my duty to inform your honorable body that in accordance with the provisions of the constitution, and in obedience to the imperative mandate of that instrument, I have assumed the exercise of the office of Governor for the time being. The exercise of executive functions being inconsistent with my further acting as President of the Senate, I cannot in the meantime discharge the duties of the presiding officer of your honorable body.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
JAMES D. LAMSON.

SNOW.

A Terrific Storm in the Sierra Nevada.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 10.—For forty-eight hours, ending this morning, a snowstorm has raged in the Sierra Nevada.
Along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad snow fell to the depth of eight or ten feet, and the wind drifted the cats full.
Three snow slides occurred between Emigrant Gap and Cisco, crushing sheds and blocking the track. In some places the snow is twenty-five feet deep on the top of the wrecked sheds. Five hundred feet of shelling west of Tamarack station is destroyed.
The overland passenger train from the east, and the Virginia fast train which left this city yesterday, are at Goldrun. The passenger train from the east, due here today, is on a side-track at Truckee, waiting for the blockade to be raised. A large force of men and snow plows are at work removing the snow from the wrecked sheds. Telegrams received at noon to-day report the storm is subsiding, and it is believed the road will be cleared to-night if no further slides occur.

THE UTES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The Ute delegation arrived this morning. They were met at the depot by two employees of the Indian Bureau, who escorted them to their quarters at the Tremont House, and have kept strict watch upon them during the day. The hotel has been besieged all day by crowds of curious people anxious to see the Indians, but all were disappointed, as the officials of the Interior Department had given strict orders that they should not be allowed to talk to any one previous to the council of the department. They remained in their room all day. Secretary Schurz stated this evening that he had not yet decided on the programme to be followed in their examination, as he is awaiting the arrival of General Adams, who is expected tomorrow.

Catarrhal

POISON!

We do Meyer's Treatise on Catarrh explain the following important facts:

1. That Catarrhal Colds become a potential infection, at first local, and finally constitutional.2. That, being Constitutional, the infection is beyond the reach of mere local remedies.3. That impurities in the nostrils, are necessarily swallowed into the stomach and inhalated into the lungs, thus poisoning the Digestive, Respiratory and Genito-urinary organs.4. That Catarrhal virus follows the mucous membrane and causes Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhoea, Bronchitis, Leucorrhoea, and Consumption.5. That smokes, Douches, Inhalations, and Insoluble Salts, cannot possibly remove infection from the organs named.6. That an antidote for Catarrh must possess an inoculative quality, for, and the quality of being absorbed by, the purulent mucus wherever located.Based upon these plain theories, Dr.
W. E. Meyer's Catarrh Cure has proved to be infallible. It not only relieves, it cures Catarrh at any stage. Home testimony:

What Mr. James Redpath Said About

Miss Anna Dickinson as a Woman and a Lecturer.

Mr. James Redpath, who is still in San Francisco, continues to be interviewed by the Chronicle about well known lecturers for whom he has been an agent. He gives a long account of Miss Anna Dickinson's early career, and then details thus upon her peculiarities, methods, and results:

"What income did she make?"

"From $10,000 to $15,000 on an average.

I think she made over $20,000 during the year she was under the management of my Bureau."

"Was she as great on the platform as on the stump?"

"She is like Decker as a lecturer,—emotional, and more so than Decker. Her lectures were full of erudition and unusual in parts, not at all bringing out her great reputation, but, however faulty they might be, there were always passages full of fire and force that resembled them. She has a remarkably clear head for political discussions, her arguments strong, terse, and lucid. Her style is original, or rather it is uncommon. Her style is original, or rather it is uncommon.

Her speech betrays her Quaker training; it is studded with such words as 'divine' and 'manifest' and 'peradventure,' and similar Bible words that have gone out of daily use, excepting among the Quakers. Her style is clear, powerful, and her delivery reminds you at times of the tabernacle—there is a certain sing-song about it. That was her style. After she determined to go on the stage she studied declamation and elocution, but, in my judgment, this study detracted from her power, because she evidently thought of what she was doing, whereas in her own speech she thought neither of herself nor her method, but was wholly absorbed in her topic."

"Miss Dickinson has the reputation of being a cold. Are these strong minded women generally unwomanly in private?"

"Well, she can cold, if I survive it," said Mr. Phillips,—"so could Garretson, so could all reformers who amounted to anything. Strong-minded women are just like weak-minded women, and some women who are not weak-minded; they have not one brand of character.

They differ just as much as other women in the private life, no more, no less.

If you knew Miss Dickinson as a private lady and didn't know her name, you would never suspect that she was the social and political life that centers about the seat of Government in a great nation, seems to possess a singular charm, which is impossible to ignore and enjoy it.

The stranger no longer wonders that the holder likes Washington, that he constantly schemes for an extension of his term, that, if finally disposed from power, he so often prefers the most humble position here to a residence elsewhere.

Not the least among the Washington charms are its physical and climatic advantages. No one can longer doubt that the city is fit to be the capital of a great country. The comprehensive plan on which it was laid out in the early years of the struggling Republic gives one a fresh respect for those far-sighted fathers who could even then devise a scheme which should to day fit the necessities of the government for 50,000,000, and be capable of equal development with the progress of the nation hereafter.

The broad avenues are a constant source of delight, the parks and squares are ample for the needs of a large city, and the great system of improvements, carried through with whatever corruption under the Shepherd regime, laid the basis for the transformation of Washington from a straggling and neglected town to a handsome metropolis. Nothing goes further to justify the choice of this locality for the capital than its climate. Though it suffers from the summer heat, its temperate during by far the greater portion of the year is most comfortable, and the change from the inclement winter which prevails over the greater portion of the country through the months of the usually balmy air of the capital is especially grateful. Indeed, as a Winter residence Washington possesses advantages over any other city in the continent, what with its mild weather, its exceptional social advantages, and the attractions which the meeting of Congress gives to one interested in studying our system of government at its fountain head.

Every winter the capital is becoming more and more the headquarters of the people of leisure, for persons of literary tastes, for students of politics, for devotees of fashion, and a composite society is gradually growing up in which every one is sure to find congenial elements.

BRIEFLETS.

Schools begun.
The roads are getting very knobby.
There is a good show of good shows this week.
The M. I. C. resumes the study of "Julius Caesar," this evening.
The Pembler House Glee Club is to appear at Mrs. Noon's entertainment tonight.
Rev. Mr. Sewell conducted the quarterly meeting services at the Whitewater church yesterday.
Mrs. Fogarty and Mrs. Mack now room together. They must find the companionship enjoyable.
Real estate is feeling better. Seventeen acres on Milton avenue were sold, Saturday, for $100 an acre.
Rock River Encampment and Daughters of Rebecca will hold another of their pleasant socials at Apollo hall, Friday evening, January 23d.
The union prayer meetings at the Baptist church proved so much of a success last week, that it has been decided to keep them up this week, every afternoon at 3 o'clock.
The farm known as the Dr. Smith place, near Mr. Winans', changed owners, Saturday, Mr. R. M. Reed selling it to R. B. Slocum, who comes from the East. The price paid was $8,000 cash, there being 100 acres.
Little Miss Dickie Lingard met with wonderful success at Hamlin's, in Chicago, last week, with her performance of Mary Melrose in "Our Boys." Every seat was taken each night, and she won the highest kind of praise. Her reputation established elsewhere will insure for her a large audience at the Opera house next Wednesday evening.
Sprague's Georgia Minstrels are to be at the Opera house to-morrow night. They always have a crowd to greet them, and the press speak in high terms of them wherever they appear. There will be fun and frolic for all, and a general good time, without any of those objectionable features of extravagance or mere clownishness.
The musical and literary entertainment to be given under the management of Mrs. Noon to-night at Lappin's Music hall is to be a treat for all. The character sketches, recitations, music, etc., by local artists will interest all, and a joyous dance in Apollo hall is to close the evening. As this is the close of Mrs. Noon's work here, that estimable lady and skillful educationist should have a crowded house, for she merits it, and the promised entertainment of itself is also worthy of a crowd.
Yesterday morning there was a pleasing incident at the Presbyterian church. While the minister was in the midst of his sermon a little boy came into the church, and advancing up the aisle, clear to the pulpit, reached out his hand and in an innocent way said "I've got a penny for you," and handed over the coin. The preacher stopped, took the coin, and the little fellow went down the aisle again. He had evidently been sent to Sunday school with instructions to give his penny to the teacher.

Aston House, New York, best accommodations, reduced prices.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.
The thermometer at 6 o'clock last evening stood at 30 degrees above zero; at 1 o'clock a. m. it was at 18 degrees above; at 7 o'clock a. m. it was at 18 degrees above; at 1 o'clock p. m. it was at 21 degrees above. Clear.
The indications to-day are for the upper lake region, northwest to southwest winds, rising followed by stationary barometer, and partly cloudy weather.

A NEW BANK.

It has for some time been a wonder why some one did not organize a banking institution at Edgerton, to accommodate not only the regular business of that place, but also those who handle so much tobacco at that station. Such a bank was organized there today, and is to be known as the Bank of Edgerton. The certificate of incorporation was filed in the office of C. L. Valentine, Register of Deeds, on the 31st inst. The capital stock is $25,000 and the shares of $500 each are taken as follows: Thomas Hudson, of Edgerton, eighteen; R. R. Brown, Edgerton, four; J. P. Towne, Edgerton, two; Thomas Thomson, Albion, four; J. I. Laak, Edgerton, two; John J. Son, Albion, two; John J. Pearson, Fulton, two; William Taylor, Edgerton, four; Silas Hurd, Fulton, four; L. H. Page, Fulton, four; W. W. Williams, Edgerton, two; R. C. Carter, Fulton, two; S. L. Lord, Edgerton, two.
The organization is in good hands, and will doubtless prove a permanent and successful institution.

An Important Personal Item.
Charles S. Prentice, of Toledo, Ohio, went to Paris and thence to England to be treated for Bright's disease, and after the best physicians of both countries had done what they could for him, gave up in despair and returned to America to die. Here he received further treatment from other skillful physicians without benefit, and while "listless" lying in pain and anguish, as he says, heard of the Sate Kidney and Liver Cure, took it, and was completely cured in a few weeks. He gives circumstantial details of the painful experience and astonishing cure, in a long letter to H. H. Warner & Co., which will be forwarded on application.

Mrs. BRIDGE'S LECTURE.
To-morrow evening Mrs. Mattie A. Bridge lectures at Lappin's Music hall, on "Human Freedom." She is an eloquent speaker, and her topics one which appeals to the popular heart. In this connection it will be interesting to many to read the following note which Mrs. Bridge received Saturday, from J. M. Alden, who was favored with complimentary:

"The compliments of Mrs. M. A. Bridge were duly received and highly appreciated by my wife and myself. Who else but you could have known how deeply I am interested in the subject of 'Human Freedom.' What two words comprehend more and yet are so little understood, I doubt not but the subject is in the hands of one who is able to do it justice, and permit me to say that no one of her brother Odd Fellows will bid her 'God-send' in her humane exertions, with more sincerity than I will. Although it is rather doubtful whether I shall be able to attend the lecture, but I am sure you that the tickets are not cast upon the waters. My first lesson on freedom was taken more than four years ago on bended knee in Temple hall. There I cut one chord loose that had bound me like a fly in a spider's net, but there are many more threads around me that gird the spirit it not the flesh, which my mission is to cut loose as fast as opportunities present themselves. Now in the words of the immortal Grant I again 'thank you.'"

SUNDAY SERMONS.

Yesterday Rev. J. H. Hazelton, Chaplain of the Bethel Home in Milwaukee, occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist church. In the morning he preached upon the text found in the 6th, 7th and 8th verses of the 123d Psalm, in which David prayed for the peace of Jerusalem. The preacher opened his discourse by showing that God had endowed man with a spiritual and a social nature. This social nature developed itself into the family life, the neighborhood, the township, state and nation. It also shaped itself into the form of church organization by which the development of the spiritual nature was increased. It was necessary therefore for man to develop both spiritually and socially in order to be symmetrical in character. Some people were so zealous in their religious observances as to forget all about the social part of their nature. Such might be pious and good, but they had little strength or influence because only half developed. The social element was one of the strong features of the church work. It enabled the church to reach the sympathies and gain the affection of men, and made the religion dovetail into the activities of life. There was much in the fact of the members of the church being brothers and sisters, in truth as well as in name. The same careful tender treatment should be observed one to another that is natural in the family circle. There should be no slandering, no delight in fault-finding. There should be sorrow for the erring ones and sympathy with the burdened souls. Peace should be sought and such a peace as Christ left in his last will and testament, and this peace could be gained by each and kept by all.

The sermon was an earnest, tender exhortation for united work in the church, and was full of many practical thoughts concerning the every day duties of life, and the relationship of church members one to the other. At the close Mr. Hazelton briefly stated the cause of the Seamen's Association, and gave a financial statement of the condition of their Bethel in Milwaukee. There was an indebtedness of about $7,000 on the property, and an attempt was being made to sweep it off. The amount had been pledged except about $1,000 which was expected to be raised from the churches of the State. To help along this enterprise a collection was taken and pledges secured.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Hazelton again preached, and gave further information concerning the Home. He is an earnest worker and under his management the cause is doing a good work, and is being well sustained. There are at present thirty seamen boarding there. Work is secured for those who need it, the sick and the distressed are cared for, the savings of the sailors are secured for them, and there is already $5,000 of their money being kept in bonds subject to their call. Books and papers and religious services are provided, and in fact everything to make the Home attractive, and keep the seamen out of wickedness while in port. Charity is bestowed where needed, and every possible good work done for those who "go down to the sea in ships that do business in great waters."

AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Yesterday, both morning and evening, Rev. H. K. Payne, of Oxford, N. Y., occupied the Presbyterian pulpit, in the absence of the pastor. As is well known here, he came to this city under circumstances, bringing under the form of his mother, for burial. He is a brother of Mr. Charles H. Payne, and has many friends and acquaintances here, who gladly improved this opportunity of hearing him preach again from a pulpit in which they last heard him some seven years ago. It is rather a sad coincidence that at that time also the angel of death had visited his family circle and taken two away. His evening subject seemed tenderly appropriate, it being "Heaven," his text being the words found in the second verse of the 21st chapter of Revelations: "the holy city, new Jerusalem." He opened the consideration of the subject by stating that throughout all nations of the world, and throughout all periods of time, there was found among men a belief in a future existence and a yearning for knowledge concerning it. There was no certain knowledge to be gained save by the Bible. The Old Testament taught concerning the future life, but it remained for Christ to throw new light upon it, and to give some of the details of what that life should be. No more vivid or beautiful description could be given than that by the inspired pen of John. That Heaven was a locality he surely believed. Some of the language used in its description might be figurative, but as in all languages figures were chosen to illustrate what could not well be understood otherwise, and always fell short of the truth behind them, if the description was figurative, it was surely true that Heaven was more glorious even than this language depicted.

Some things were sure. It was a place where there would be no more suffering, no more toil or weariness, no sin. There were to be met there the dear friends of earth, the saints of all ages; the good and the true of all climes, and God himself. There would be occupation for all in studying the wonders of nature and of Providence, and perchance in going on divine missions. It would be a home, free from all that in any way mars our earthly enjoyment of that most sacred place, and increased by the addition of everything that we can desire. Such a place was worth struggling for. It was possible for everyone to win it, if they would shape their lives in accordance with the divine will.

The sermon was a tender picturing of the beauties and delights of Heaven, and closed with an earnest exhortation for all to strive to so live that they might enter in.

OBITUARY.

MRS. STOKLEY HUTCHINSON.

Last evening about 6 o'clock death ended the sufferings of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Hutchinson, wife of ex-Ald. Stokley Hutchinson. She had been for some time in a dangerous condition. Her health has been very poor for a year past, and since last October she has been confined to her bed. Last week she seemed somewhat better, but from Saturday morning grew rapidly worse until death came to her relief.

Mrs. Hutchinson was born in England, in October, 1830, and there she and her husband were married in 1853. They soon afterwards came to this country, remaining in New York for about three years, and then moved to Wisconsin, and after spending about the same length of time in Dane county, they removed to this city in 1859, and have resided here since, winning for themselves the friendship of many and the esteem and respect of all. The family circle thus broken now consists of the bereaved husband and five children, three daughters and two sons. To them the earnest sympathy of the community will be extended in this dark hour of their trial. The one who has thus gone was of a quiet retiring disposition, possessing many of the qualities of true womanhood, and those who knew her best will mourn her loss. The date of the funeral has not yet been fixed upon, but will probably be on Wednesday afternoon, but due announcement will be made to-morrow.

BAD BUSINESS.

George Craig Found Guilty of Mutilating the Tombstones in the Evansville Cemetery.

The trial of George Craig, charged with having mutilated the tombstones in the Evansville cemetery, came to a close before Justice Brooks on Saturday evening. Craig is a young man, a marble cutter by trade, and came to Evansville last spring and secured employment in Mr. Sprichard's shop there. Soon afterwards it was discovered that over ninety tombstones had been chipped and broken as though by a hammer or sledge. The whole community was aroused, and the search for the offender has been kept up vigilantly. Suspicion rested on Craig, and he was closely watched. It appears that he made admissions to one of his chums, and this chum squealed on him. He made remarks to others which caused further proof of his guilt, and it was mainly on these admissions that he was found guilty. Among the evidence brought out in the trial was the fact that when informed that such a thing had occurred he gave no expression of surprise, and asked no questions, but taking a piece of paper and a pencil he proceeded to the cemetery in company with another man, and began taking a full list of the mutilated stones, so that he might see the relatives and secure work in repairing and replacing them. As he made this business-like round, he cracked many jokes, calling one after another of the deceased familiarly by their given names, and naming the sum needed for repairs in about this way: "Well, John, we'll have to fix you about $8." "Hello, Sarah, you're bad off. It will cost you from $10 to $15 to get fixed up again." Such heartless conduct in the midst of such a scene of vandalism called out much indignation on the part of those who heard the evidence. As to Craig's previous record, it was shown that he had once stolen a watch and pleaded guilty to the theft.

The defence sought to establish an alibi, and the accused denied the admissions in every particular. An attempt was made to show that some of the witnesses were swearing in accordance with a plot to either wreak vengeance on Craig for some offense he had caused them, or to gain the reward offered for the conviction of those who had committed the vandalism.

Justice Brooks found the accused guilty and sentenced him to three months in jail. As this action was brought on the mutilation of one tombstone only, it follows that the same course can be pursued as regards each of the ninety stones thus broken. It is not probable that it will be done, but if it should be, and the same result followed in each case, he would have about seventy or eighty years to serve.

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL.

The city schools opened this morning for another term. The enrollment to-day reaches 1,297 pupils. Boys, 643; girls, 644.

A Thankful Butcher.

A prominent butcher of Port Carbon, Pa., reports: "I cannot refrain from informing you of the wonderful effects of ST. JACOB'S OIL. I suffered many years with Rheumatism, and to such a degree that I was often unable to leave my bed. I used ST. JACOB'S OIL and was relieved at once; the pains gradually disappeared, and to-day I feel like new-born."

AROUND THE ROUND TABLE.

The meeting of the Round Table last Saturday evening was not up to the usual high standard of excellence, owing to the fact that the manager for the evening was necessarily absent from the city, and there had been a neglect until a late hour in securing participants. Such preparation as was made had to be in haste, and prevented the expenditure of the usual time and toil in getting together the facts and thoughts needed for a rightful study. Considering this, however, the participants did most nobly, and much was presented which proved of interest and profit to all who gathered there.

The study for the evening was "The Tempest." Miss Gertrude Zeininger read from Lamb's "Tales of Shakespeare" a sketch of the play, after which there was a general discussion of its origin and merits. In Rev. T. P. Sawin, J. C. Metcalf, J. P. Haife, and B. F. Dunwiddie participated. Rev. T. P. Sawin read a portion of Miss Jameson's criticism on the character of Miranda. Miss A. I. Hobart read concerning the supernatural in Shakespeare. Mrs. Dr. Butler presented a well written paper on Caliban. Mr. Dunwiddie spoke of the play as a work of art, and Miss Car-Zeiningler read extracts from the play.

The attendance was quite large, and the programme thus hastily prepared was attentively listened to.

WIRY WRESTLERS.

Little Marc Wins in the Match with Joseph.

The announcement that a wrestling match would take place at the Opera house, Saturday evening, did not draw a very large audience, there being only thirty or forty present, and they being largely made up of aldermen and newspaper men. The contestants were Mons. Joseph, of Milwaukee, and Prof. Marc, of Paris. Joseph was somewhat known here, and among those posted in sporting matters Marc's reputation as an athlete had already run before him. It appears that Marc won two matches from Joseph before this, but the latter still seemed to think he could throw his opponent, and so risked another $100 on the event. At the hour set A. E. Morse took his seat as referee and Alex. Russell and G. Fred Seleck as judges for Joseph and Marc, respectively. The athletes appeared, bared to the waist, and presenting a fine show of muscle. Joseph was much the taller and heavier, his weight being about 180 pounds. Marc weighs about 135 pounds, is wiry and very quick and nervous. The contrast between the appearance and action of the men was striking. On time being called they shook hands and went in. To those who had never witnessed a Greco-Roman contest, it was an exciting novelty. No catch being allowed below the waist, and the fall having to be on the back with both shoulders touching the floor, it did not look like an easy matter. The struggle in the first round was a fierce one, but at the end of four minutes Joseph had his opponent down. After the ten minutes' breathing spell which was allowed between bouts, they again grappled. The round lasted two and a half minutes; and Joseph again won. The tables then turned. Joseph seemed out of wind, and the recess evened would not let him gain it. Marc was as spry as a cat and in the third round, threw his larger opponent in fifty-five seconds. Marc also won the fourth and fifth falls, the former round lasting 22 seconds, and the latter 25 seconds. Marc was therefore declared the winner. He then offered to wrestle anybody in the audience for $50 to $100 but no one seemed inclined to accept, all feeling rather indisposed.

A PROVIDENTIAL VISIT.

Benjamin Horton writes from Minneapolis: "O. Williams: DEAR SIR:—Since a recent visit to an uncle of mine, Lyman Horton, of Jackson county, Minnesota, I received the following letter from him which may be of use to you: 'Your recent visit seems to us providential. For three years my wife has been severely afflicted with a cough. As you know, we were all very much alarmed about her condition, and on your recommendation we procured a bottle of Hale's Cough Cordial. The effect of this medicine has seemed a miracle to us. It has effected a complete cure, and my wife's health was never better.'"

Liver Complaint and Indigestion
DEAR SIR:—My business has been that of an engraver and carver in wood. Owing to confinement to ill-ventilated rooms my health gradually declined, when I was unable any longer to prosecute my business. At this time I was suffering from great prostration of strength, extreme indigestion and disordered liver. My usual weight was 135 pounds, but I had become so much emaciated that I weighed but 109 pounds. In the early part of May I commenced taking the PERUVIAN SYRUP, and almost immediately felt its tonic and invigorating influence. In the course of four months I used four bottles. My weight this day is 149 pounds. I have neither liver complaint nor indigestion, but consider myself in a perfect state of health, and in good spirits. Sold by all druggists. CHARLES TOWN, Mass.
